About the water share transfer

1. Transferring a water share

The two steps to transfer whole or part of a water share are:

Step 1 Applying for approval from the seller's water corporation using this form.

When the water corporation approves the transfer it sends a letter to the buyer, seller and lodging agent/ solicitor and sends a 'Transfer of Water Share' document to the seller or his/ her agent.

Step 2 Lodging a signed and completed 'Transfer of Water Share' form with the Water Registrar.

If there is a mortgage on the water share the seller must provide evidence that it has been discharged or that the mortgagee bank has consented to the transfer.

Any limited term transfer stays on the water share until it expires, or is surrendered.

The parties named on the 'Transfer of Water Share' must complete and lodge it with the Water Registrar within two calendar months from the date of the water corporation's approval. Otherwise the approval expires and the application process has to start again.

The Water Registrar notifies the seller and buyer/ lodging party when the transfer has been recorded and sends the buyer a copy of the record of the water share. Until this happens the buyer does not own the water share.

2. Transferring part of a water share

The approval to transfer part of a water share automatically cancels the original share and creates two new water shares in the seller's name. One share is for the volume being transferred and the other is for the volume being kept. The two new water shares will continue to exist even if the Water Registrar does not record the transfer.

3. Allocation does not transfer with a water share

Transferring the water share does not transfer the allocation account ABA or any water in it. If you want to buy the seller's allocation you need to make a separate application (a Form 39 Application to Trade Water Allocation).

Please note that the seller still owns the water share until the Water Registrar records the change of ownership. This means that in the time between the water corporation approving the application and the Water Registrar recording the transfer any allocations issued will go into the seller's allocation account.

Where the transferred water share will be used

4. Using the water share you are buying on land

To use water on your land, either your water share needs to be associated with the land, or you need the Minister's approval to use the water from the water share on that land. This application form provides for both of these options.

To be associated with land the volume of the water share must not be greater than twice the water-use licence/ registration's annual-use-limit.

When you buy a water share with the land you can choose to retain the current association.

You are also applying for the Minister's on-going approval to use allocation from all water shares linked to the nominated account on all the land linked to the account.

5. Linking the water share to an ABA

The buyer can nominate an existing allocation account (ABA) which has the same trading zones as the water share. If you do not nominate a compatible allocation account, the water corporation will issue a new one for you.

By linking your water share to an allocation account, you are applying to have future allocations from your water share deposited into the account. If you are not named on the account, you are giving future allocations to the person(s) named on that account.

6. Water share ownership

Like land, a water share can be owned as:

Sole owner - where only one person/ legal entity owns the water share, or as

Joint owners - where two or more people/ legal entities own a water share together and if one joint owner dies, the whole of the water share remains with the surviving joint owners, or as Tenants in common - where two or more people/ legal entities own a defined portion of a water share. Under this arrangement an owner can sell their portion without the approval of the other owners. If one of the owners dies their ownership passes in accordance with their Will.

Tenants in common owning their portions as joint owners - where two or more people/ legal entities own a defined portion of a water share.

7. Water entitlements

You can get the full details of different water entitlements by paying a fee and downloading a copy of record from the Water Register website at www.waterregister.vic.gov.au

You can also check if there is a mortgage on a water share by searching for a water share copy of record.

8. What is happening under the Water Act 1989

This form is an application, where applicable, for the Minister's approval to:

- transfer a water share (under section 33X);
- divide a water share (under section 33Y);
- vary the water share (under section 33R);
- associate the water share (or revoke its association) with a water-use licence or water-use registration (under section 33AQ);
- give a standing direction (under section 33TA);
- revoke a standing direction (under section 33TB);
- approval to take water outside the water system (under section 33AI);
- approval to use water from the water share on land which the water share is not associated (under section 64 K).
